Safety Officer Report

There have been reports of some incursions of flying in the no fly zone. A discussion occurred as to whether a thermaling aircraft is allowed to be in those zones. It was suggested that for maiden flights good, non-windy days should be the days for maiden flights. If it is windy you cannot tell if the plane is out of trim or if the poor flying is a result of the wind. Leif reported a story of a van being burned because the owner charged a Lipo battery on the seat. Alvin requested that no oily paper towels be put in the "ash trays". Oily paper towels and rags should be put in the regular trash.

A question was asked as to where unused transmitters should be. All transmitters, when not in use should be in the impound area. When ready to fly, the pilot takes the frequency number and places it on the transmitter. The pilot then puts a clothespin with his/her name on it in the empty space vacated by the frequency number pin. When completed flying, the pilot replaces the frequency pin on the board and impounds the transmitter. All pilots using the 2.4 GHz systems must do the same except they take the white pins specially made for their system.

Chief Flight Instructor Report

Walt Faulkner is in training. Dan Crawford is close to soloing. Bill Devoe received his 1st instruction. Mike recommends a book titled One Week to Solo. Talk to Mike Denest to learn how to get one.
